FEBRUARY 2017

Issue 2017- 2

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Todd Andre-Colton

This is my first newsletter submission of my term as President of the Northern Virginia Woodcarvers. Let me make a few pronouncements about my presidency. All members will from here out be master carvers and painters, able to carve anything and to leap tall buildings in a single bound. Beer and cider will be served at all meetings, and best of all, nobody will get drunk!

Well, thinking about it, those goals might be stretching things a bit. All I can really promise is that I will do my best for the club in the coming year.

This afternoon as I was thinking about what to write for this article, I was placing all of my patio furniture into our new 8x8 shed. I know that I have shown a lot of you my pictures of the shed (from Sheds USA – Home Depot) and the custom build-outs that I made which included a very high capacity loft, a workbench with a shelf over and a lot of wall storage for various tools. All of this left a lot of very usable space where I have been able to store my lawnmower, my leaf blower/mulcher, my ladders, fertilizer, and various bags and containers of Ice Melt, herbicides and fertilizer.

So, what's the point? For the first time this year, I have been able to neatly store all of my patio furniture, all of my yard tools, a sizable number of Christmas decorations and various other tools. Before, a lot of this stuff would have had to be stored in my basement, including my shop, in a tiny overcrowded shed with a lot of the stuff being on top of the lawnmower, or left out on the patio subject to the ravages of winter and possible deep snow. I have been able to take back mowing the lawn and leaf removal from the lawn service; on that basis alone the cost of the shed will be recovered in five short years.

That in turn set me to thinking about storage for my carving tools. What can I do that would provide the same opportunities for more efficient use of my carving tool, storage of materials, protection of my tools and, in general, more enjoyment of the hobby? I hope that this may also set all of you to thinking. In the months ahead, I will be doing some building, and I will try to share what I have done with you. Some things I will share while they are still in the planning phase so that all of you, experienced carvers with different perspectives, can offer suggestions to improve the build or encourage you to build your own work solutions. I hope that all of you will find a way to get on board with this. Lord knows, I can use the help!

FROM THE PRESIDENT(cont.d)

The final thing is what to do about the Colvin Mill program. They have enquired about our continued participation in their programs. Insurance is definitely an issue and, given the low levels of publicity support and user interest last year, may make it less than cost effective. I hate to stop participation based on the experience of a single year, but the cost of insurance will probably be at least $300, plus the time and expense of our participating carvers. Before our next meeting, I would hope that each of you will define what you consider to be the minimum level of participation on the part of Colvin Mill, the target audience and our own carvers that would justify the cost of insurance. I would hope that after the next (February) meeting, we will be able to give the Mill our answer. For my part, I will contact our insurer to make clear what our cost will be.

Happy carving!
Todd

Special thanks to Grace Mock for the following10,000 Hour Rule

Malcolm Gladwell, (a social science journalist), believes 10,000 hours of “deliberate practice” (90 minutes a day for 20 years) is needed to become a world class master in any field. Practice becomes a predictor when playing chess, where rules never change, but does it apply to woodcarving? In woodcarving, mastery is more than practice. It includes teaching others, discussing techniques, having good safety practice habits, reading what others have done and staying motivated to do more. Other factors to consider include personality, the age one started, intelligence or maybe something totally different. But whatever brings you to Northern Virginia Wood Carvers time stops and work becomes play. Each finished carving is a sense of profound satisfaction and getting closer to having 10,000 hours in becoming a master.

This and That

Last month’s meeting, many great books were auctioned. I purchased two and both were from the state of Missouri. After looking through them, I noticed on the first page of one of the books, the photography was done in Clinton, Missouri. What a small world, my husband is from that town. My husband proceeded to get on Facebook and chatted with the photographer’s son. He tells him he sees the family studio name in print. He responds back saying; he went with his father to this carver’s house and thought he was in a museum. He didn’t think he was more than nine and has never forgotten his time there. There were carvings high and low and everywhere, one better than the next one. What he thought would only take one morning, took two Saturday’s, there was just so many carvings. Small world! -Grace Mock

MIKE CONNORS PRESENTATION ON LARGE EDGE TOOLS

The program for the Feb business meeting will include a talk by Mike Connors on the larger edge tools: the drawknife and the carving hatchet. Mike will discuss his experience with various tools and what he's learned about making carving hatchets out of "normal" hatchets.

Wayne Barton –Chip Carving ClassMarch 10-12, 2017

The Montgomery County Wood Carving Club is offering a class by nationally known carving guru Wayne Barton. This is open to all people of skill levels– beginners to advanced. A full three days of learning and carving led by the 2005 Wood Carver of the year, the class will begin with elements of design and tool sharpening, cover basic chip carving techniques and lay out before moving on to the project itself. The class project will be carving a lidded pot (or box by another name) and will involve carving borders, rosette and basic flowers all involving a curved surface. The pot is 6 inches high and 4.5 inches in diameter. Show up and have fun.

COST ; $350

LOCATION: Washington Grove Women's Club House, 300 Chestnut Road, Washington Grove, MD.20880

TIME : 9 am to 4 pm, Friday, March 10 through Sunday, March 12.

Bring any chip carving knives and sharpening stones you may have along with a small tee square with both metric and imperial increments, a bow compass and a mechanical .05 pencil.

All necessary tools and wood will be available for purchase from the instructor. The pot is available from the instructor for $67. Register : contact Joe Clark at woodherb@gmail.com or phone 301-869-7944

A SPECIAL THANKS TO TODD ANDRE-COLTON AND MIKE CONNORS FOR STEPPING UP AND BECOMING PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT

TIME TO RENEW YOUR MEMBERSHIP

Dues are coming in slowly, please pay ASAP. If you became a member in Oct. or later you are paid up for 2017

Membership in the Northern Virginia Carvers runs from January to December. Please bring your dues, which are $20.00 for a single membership and $5.00 for each additional family member, to the Carving Center or Packard Center on Thursday nights, give to Peter Ward, Treasurer, or mail to Robert Simoniz, Membership Chairman, 6819 Rock Creek Court, Alexandria, VA 22306. Make check payable to NVC.

The NVC Board would like to have your suggestions for future topics at the Packard Center and also classes or workshops you would like to see offered. Write your suggestions on the renewal form or email to Mike Connors, mikecarver66@gmail.com.

Please give us your current email address if you can receive the newsletter by email. This will save the club a great deal of money. Some clubs are now charging members who get mailed copy a higher amount for dues. NVC does not currently do this, and does not wish to start, but we do try to keep the mailed copies to a minimum.

If you have changed your email, please let us know. If you used to get the newsletter by email, but recently have received mailed copies, then something is wrong with the email address we have on file for you, and your email copy bounced back. Please contact Bob Simoniz at rsim2193@verizon.net, so he can correct the database.
